ABOUT THE FIRM

The SLATON SCHAUER LAW FIRM, PLLC exclusively practices estate planning law. This focus ensures that our clients obtain the best possible legal advice in this complex field. Your situation-- family or business, simple or complicated-- is in safe hands with the Slaton Schauer Law Firm, PLLC. Our estate plans are always tailored to meet both your goals and your family's needs. We listen to your concerns and discuss your unique circumstances, getting to know you and your family as individuals. We're sensitive to the personal nature of each situation that enters our firm, and we work with you to determine the best path forward. Different situations require different solutions; no single "cookie cutter" plan fits everyone.

Regina Schauer has been practicing law for over 25 years. Her experience and accolades include 8 years of service as a judge, working in a prosecutor's office, being named Judge of the Year by the Department of Human Services, and being honored as Attorney of the Year by Legal Aid. Before she began practicing exclusively in estate planning Regina ran two international programs where she assisted in adoptions of Russian orphans. She helped to place these children into loving American homes, giving them a chance at a decent and productive life. Regina has 3 children, so she personally understands how both family dynamics and generational legacies must be carefully considered in estate planning.

Andrew T. Slaton-Freeman has a background in complex contracts, the defense industry, and business organizations. This includes work with scientific entities at Texas A&M University (especially contracts between research institutions and outside vendors), experience with a large military contractor, and litigation for the Texas Office of the Attorney General. He is Regina's oldest son, and is committed to upholding the family values and client focus of the Slaton Schauer Law Firm, PLLC for generations into the future. When he's not at work, Andrew enjoys taking his dog on hiking trips, volunteering in the local community, and playing tabletop games.

Both Regina and Andrew are members of American Academy of Estate Planning Attorneys (AAEPA). The AAEPA is a prestigious, invitation-only organization which has fewer than 15 members in all of Texas. To remain in good standing with the AAEPA an attorney must meet qualifications that include significant education requirements; these are more than double those required of most attorneys in Texas. Andrew has also been accepted into the Texas Bar College. This is an honorary society for attorneys who have obtained even more additional education. Both attorneys at the Slaton Schauer Law Firm, PLLC approach estate planning law from a skillful, academic perspective, with a passion for providing the very best estate plans possible at a reasonable cost to clients. This care helps to fuel our passion for both legal education and local volunteerism.

If you or your loved ones would like a complimentary consultation with us to discuss your estate planning options, we are happy to answer questions, discuss the differences between wills and trusts, explain various types of trusts, and explore other estate planning tools that may be correct for your situation. This knowledge can help to empower you in making informed decisions to protect yourself, your family, and even your legacy. We look forward to meeting you.

Please call us today at (512) 258-WILL / (512) 258-9455 to schedule an appointment and see why we are continually recognized as a five-star law firm with a focus on wealth protection. We also present educational seminars on estate planning, current legal issues, and topics of particular interest to seniors. These are always free and open to the public, but they do tend to fill up quickly-- we kindly ask that you reserve a seat in advance to help us with planning. Please call if you want to be on our mailing list regarding upcoming seminars so that you may receive notice before the general public. There is no obligation or fee for signing up.

DANGERSOF DO-IT-YOURSELF WILLS AND LIVING TRUSTS

Estate planning is an essential part of life and death. In planning for our future and our family's future, we must take stock of who we are, what our goals are, and how we want our estate distributed. With the easy availability of do-it -yourself wills and Living Trusts, it can be all too tempting to take care of your estate planning needs yourself, rather than pay, what may seem like high fees, to an estate planning attorney.

You can easily go on the internet or the local office supply store, gather the necessary forms and information, spend a lit t le of your time, and, presto, you have a will or Living Trust. However, it is very easy to overlook important legal and technical planning points that can cause the estate or your beneficiaries to pay unnecessary taxes, high fees to attorneys or probate court, or can cause assets to be distributed to the wrong people at the wrong time.

What may seem like a great deal could cost your estate and your beneficiaries tens of thousands of dollars (or more) in the long-run. All too often it's not just about the money… there is frequently added anguish that family members have to endure in dealing with details you thought you looked after.

In one case, a successful Washington businessman wrote his own will assuming his assets would be free of estate tax. However, due to the language he used, the IRS interpreted the law differently and claimed all the assets he passed to his wife were subject to $800,000 in estate tax plus $130,00 0 in back interest. His family went to court and eventually won, but only after nearly ten years of costly litigation and years of turmoil.

One of the biggest problems with do-it -yourself software packages and forms is the lack of personal advice. Although this software may be able to walk you step-by-step through a form, it can never provide the advice that comes from an experienced estate planning attorney.

Experienced estate planning attorneys do not create a boilerplate will or trust. Instead, they can help you create a customized, individualized estate plan based on an in-depth discussion about your current financial situation, your future plans, and your intentions once you pass away. In fact, many of the software packages and other do-it-yourself resources have a strong disclaimer that says they are not a substitute for legal advice and to consult an attorney for help in understanding how the law may apply to your particular situation.

A comprehensive and effective will or trust is based on asking all the right questions and taking your individual needs into account, something no software or form can do. How can you even know if you need a will or trust? There are substantial differences in those two tools and oftentimes a will and a trust need accompanying documents to make the plan work exactly as you'd like for it to.

WHEN IS A DO-IT-YOURSELF ESTATE PLAN INSUFFICIENT?

We could easily argue that a do-it-yourself estate plan is "always" insufficient, but let's be more specific. Do-it-yourself kits cannot adequately cover your needs if, for example:

- You own real estate
- You own a share in a small business
- You wish to disinherit your spouse or child
- You wish to leave money to your grandchildren but not your children
- You are married and you and/or your spouse have children from a previous marriage
- You wish to arrange long-term care for a disabled beneficiary
- You have minor children
- You have investments, including an IRA or 401(k)
- You're worried about young or irresponsible beneficiaries making foolish financial decisions with their inheritance
- You have a potentially taxable estate
- You would like to include creditor or divorce protection for your beneficiaries
- You share property with someone who is not your husband, wife, or legal partner
- You fear a challenge to your will

What can happen in situations like those listed above? In one instance, a stepmother used software to leave everything to her "children." Unfortunately, the state law said she didn't have any children because she had never legally adopted her stepchildren. As a result, it cost them $100,000 in legal fees to claim their inheritance.

In another case, a grandfather used software he purchased to name his grandchildren as heirs instead of his children. Skipping a generation allowed the IRS to tax his assets twice, and the grandchildren only received 20% of a $100 million estate.

IT'S ALL IN THE EXECUTION

Even a simple estate plan can run into trouble if all the rules aren't followed. For example, a will or trust is not considered valid unless it has been properly executed according to state law. Some states require two witnesses for a will. Others require three witnesses, all of whom must be present at the time the will is signed. And if one of those witnesses is also a beneficiary (like, for example, your spouse), that witness could be disqualified from receiving any assets distributed by your will or trust.

Some states allow a holographic will, which is a will you write entirely by hand. Although normally a will must be signed by witnesses attesting to the validity of the testator's signature and intent, in many jurisdictions, unwitnessed holographic wills are treated as valid and need only to meet minimal requirements in order to be probated.

Even if properly executed, a do-it -yourself will may also take longer to probate because the judge may question the process used in the drafting and execution of the will, requiring witnesses to appear in court to attest to the validity of the will.

The will or trust you receive from an experienced estate planning attorney will be properly executed according to precise jurisdictional guidelines.

DO-IT-YOURSELF KITS CANNOT CREATE COMPREHENSIVE ESTATE PLANS

Do you consider yourself to be "run-of-t he-mill" or "boilerplate"? We don't think you are either. One of the many pit falls of do-it -yourself estate planning is that it is a one-size fit s all approach. Although they may provide some information and some amount of guidance, the will or trust cannot be tailored to your individual needs, goals, or concerns. Almost everyone has a condition or situation that requires a unique combination of estate planning tools.

Tax planning is especially complicated. Most people don't know how much money they can pass, or eventually will pass, without paying taxes. The permanent federal exclusion for estate taxes is $5 million (adjust ed for inflation). However, this amount is temporarily doubled for 2018 through 2025). In 2021, you can leave up to $11.7 million to anyone without federal tax. The amount you can leave without state taxation might be much lower. Additionally, for a married couple, the surviving spouse can use their deceased spouse's exemption. However, they may only do so if an estate tax return was filed for that spouse. There are many reasons, both tax and non-tax, that you might want to set aside the assets of the first spouse to die at their death.

A tried and true strategy often used in those cases is to create a Family Trust to provide for your spouse and children and preserve applicable exclusions (the amount of assets that the first spouse to die can pass tax-free).

A Family Trust can also provide protection from an additional layer of tax if you make bequests to grandchildren. A Family Trust may be used to provide protection from divorce in the event the surviving spouse remarries. Further, the trust can protect assets from the creditors of the surviving spouse. In a blended family, sometimes one spouse may want to ensure that the distribution of their wealth is set in stone, rather than depend upon the surviving spouse's estate plan. A Family Trust works well to provide for the survivor, while locking in the distribution after death of the survivor.

Blended family situations can also create difficulties in drafting. If you have children who are not adopted, using the language, "…to my children…," in a bequest will result in those children being left out of your estate unless they are specifically named. Do-it-yourself kits are simply not designed to cover all possible financial and taxation situations.

BUT WAIT, THERE IS MORE…

Also keep in mind that IRA, 401(k), and life insurance designations can create further complications. If your will bequeaths an IRA to a child but your spouse is the beneficiary, the IRA will pass to the spouse regardless of the intentions expressed in the will. Effective estate planning is a comprehensive and thorough process. Errors or ineffective planning, incurred now by the use of do-it-yourself kits, could cost your heirs tens of thousands of dollars when you are gone.

An experienced estate planning attorney will do more than help you properly structure your estate plan to limit the impact of taxes and disputes, and pass on your assets. They will not only draft your will, but also critical estate planning documents such as a Revocable Living Trust, Durable Power of Attorney, Health Care Power of Attorney, a Living Will, and HIPAA Release creating an effective and comprehensive estate plan.

AND WHEN THINGS CHANGE …

One of the biggest mistakes do-it-yourselfers make is that they don't keep their estate plan current. They fail to realize that creating an estate plan is just the first step in the estate planning process. You will want to review your plan periodically to make sure it accurately reflects your current goals and requirements. Chances are your personal and financial situation will change as years go by.

A do-it-yourself kit cannot periodically review and update your plan in case of:

- Marriage
- Divorce
- Birth or adoption of children
- Illness or incapacitation
- Changes in your intentions
- Changes in tax or non-tax laws
- Inheritance
- Change in assets
- Change in residence
- Death of family member

Even a recently established estate plan may require revision if major life or financial changes occur. And if your personal situation hasn't changed, changes in federal or state laws can still affect your plan, which may cost you thousands of dollars by not taking advantage of new regulations.

WHERE THERE'S A GREAT WILL… THERE'S A GREAT WAY

If you don't have a will or a trust, the state has prepared a plan for you. The distribution of your assets will be based on the state's intestacy laws. While having an estate plan can be better than having no estate plan at all, your plan should precisely express your intentions. Your estate plan should carry out your wishes precisely as you intend. An effective estate plan will provide financial stability to your spouse, children, or other beneficiaries, protect your assets for future generations, ensure your wishes are carried out, and protect the privacy of your loved ones.
